Description: U.S. American masculinity is being critiqued, questioned, and reinterpreted for a new era. Based on in-depth interviews with trans men in the U.S. West, Southeast, and Midwest, this talk shows how navigating the places and spaces men inhabit in everyday life is fundamental to their experiences of race, sexuality, and gender and to the reproduction of social inequities across urban and rural spaces.

Miriam J. Abelson is Associate Professor of Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies at Portland State University. Her research focuses on the intersection of race, sexuality, and gender in rural and urban spaces, masculinities, and queer and transgender studies, including current projects on rural LGBTQ lives and right-wing movements in the Pacific Northwest and marginalized people’s access to urban public transit. Her book, Men in Place: Trans Masculinity, Race, and Sexuality in America (Minnesota), was published in 2019.
